Reference was made by a member of council to the injury the city would men and those who supply us with sustain by a prohibition of the saloons our food. William Baggott Passed Away. Last Evening at His Home on Second Street.

CAME TO THIS CITY IN 1848

tery In 1852 and Engaged In the Manufacture of Ware.

RETIRED FROM BUSINESS IN 1893

William Baggott died at his homeon Second street at 1:20 this morning. He is one of the best known citizens in East Liverpool, having been a resident here since the year 1848. The immediate cause of his death was Bright's disease. Two weeks ago his ailment first became serious. Before that he was out every day making trips around town and to the various potteries, taking as much interest in the work as when he was actively engaged in the business.

William Baggott was born in Staffordshire, England, 77 years ago. He was the son of James Baggott, who was prominent in England as a brick maker. He was one of a family of 13 children, and he and his brother, Samuel Baggott, learned their father's trade, but saw greater possibilities in America than were then in England. They started for this country in 1848, landing in New York May 12. They spent a few days in that city and other eastern points, but their intention was to locate in East Liverpool. They started for this place, traveling over the Erie canal to Buffalo, that being the best route of travel available in those days. They made their way overland from that point arriving here late in the summer. East Liverpool was then in its infancy, and the brothers were among the first to make ware ergy, and this coupled with a thorough understanding of the business, soon enabled them to build up a large trade. It was not long before they were shipping ware to wholesalers in various parts of the country. On November 1, 1852, they bought and took charge of the old John Goodwin pottery, which had been in operation seven or eight years at that time. Their purchase was not a large one, having at that time but two kilns and employing about 30 or 40 men. It was, however, among the largest of the potteries operating in the city at that time, the number then being about 13, all of which were engaged in the production of yellow or Rockingham ware. This pottery was located in an old frame building on the site where the Mountford pottery is now located. The plant was totally destroyed by fire in 1856, but was rebuilt at once, a number of improvements being made, and this, in addition to increased shipping facilities, increased their business materially. Additions were made to the plant from time to time, and quite an extensive business was being done at Lisbon, July 13.—(Special.)—Mrs. the time of the death of Samuel Baggott, which occurred Oct. 23, 1893. The pottery was sold soon after to John Mountford.

The only remaining member of the mily is a niece, who lives in England. family is a niece, who lives in England. He leaves a wife, Mrs. Mary Baggott, whose maiden name was Mary Behlafelt. They were married 25 years ago. No children were born to this union. Mr. Baggott was a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, being one of the first members of that congregation in this city.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. Weary, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church. Interment will be made in Riverview ceme tery. The vestrymen of the church will act as pallbearers.

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY WILL ABIDE

By the Decision of Council in Regard to Running Cars Too Fast in East End.

Now that council has requested the East Liverpool and Wellsville Street Railway company to run its cars at less speed in the East End district, the company, it seems, is at somewhat of a disadvantage as to how to remedy the matter, although it is reported they are willing to abide by the request of the city council.

As matters are at present, it is with some dimculty that the motormen make their schedule time in that part of the city, owing to the distance between the East End switch and the loop, which, by the way, is the longest stretch between any two switches along the line. Another matter that is to be taken into consideration is the fact that passengers can only get on cars where stop signs are displayed, while in the past a car would stop at any point to accommodate a passenger. The motormen state that if the request of council is followed out a new switch will have to be constructed or the schedule time changed. For the the present it is apparent that both the company, motormen and passengers are wondering which is the pest course to pursue.

Wheeling, July 13 .- (Special.) -The Brotherhood convention has decided that kilndrawers shall hereafter get $1 50 per day and the foreman $1 75.

The office of national statistician was abolished by the convention and the president will look after the work in the future. The office was held by James Miles, of East Liverpool.

The question of jiggermen on hotel ware was taken up and it was decided that they be given the same wages as before the uniform scale went into operation. This was one part of the trade that was overlooked at the Pittshurg conference.

The report of the trustees was read and showed a decided increase during the past year both in finances and membership.

The balance of the morning session was spent in discussing the incoming executive board and how it shall be constituted. Heretofore the executive board has consisted of members from East Liverpool. Trenton and Wheeling now demand representation on the board and there is likely to be a fight before the matter is settled.

The convention expects to finish up the work tomorrow. The only candidates for the presidency seem to be E. A. Stevenson and Al Hughes, of East Liverpool, and the sentiment seems to be decidedly in favor of Hughes. It is almost conceded that Secretary Duffy will be reelected withcut opposition.

RETIRED FROM BUSINESS IN 1893

William Baggott died at his homeon Second street at 1:20 this morning. He is one of the best known citizens in East Liverpool, having been a resident here since the year 1848. The immediate cause of his death was Bright's disease. Two weeks ago his ailment first became serious. Before that he was out every day making trips around town and to the various potteries, taking as much interest in the work as when he was actively engaged in the business.

William Baggott was born in Staffordshire, England, 77 years ago. He was the son of James Baggott, who was prominent in England as a brickmaker. He was one of a family of 13 children, and he and his brother, Samuel Baggott, learned their father's trade, but saw greater possibilities in America than were then in England. They started for this country in 1848. landing in New York May 12. They spent a few days in that city and other eastern points, but their intention was to locate in East Liverpool. They started for this place, traveling over the Erie canal to Buffalo, that being the best route of travel available in those days. They made their way overland from that point arriving here late in the summer. East Liverpool was then in its infancy, and the brothers were among the first to make ware in this city. They were full of energy, and this coupled with a thorough understanding of the business, soon enabled them to build up a large trade. It was not long before they were shipping ware to wholesalers in various parts of the country. On November 1, 1852, they bought and took charge of the old John Goodwin pottery, which had been in operation seven or eight years at that time. Their purchase was not a large one, having at that time but two kilns and employing about 30 or 40 men. It was, however, among the largest of the potteries financial secretary, Homer Owen. operating in the city at that time, the number then being about 13, all of which were engaged in the production following officers: of yellow or Rockingham ware. This pottery was located in an old frame building on the site where the Mount ford pottery is now located. The plant was totally destroyed by fire in 1856, but was rebuilt at once, a number of improvements being made, and this, in addition to increased shipping facilities, increased their business materially. Additions were made to the plant from time to time, and quite an right and left supporter, Mrs. Schamp extensive business was being done at and Miss Lowe. the time of the death of Samuel Baggott, which occurred Oct. 23, 1893. The pottery was sold soon after to John Mountford.

Mr. Baggott retired from active busiprovements which were successfully given at Salineville in 1889.

He leaves a wife, Mrs. Mary Baggott. whose maiden name was Mary Behlafelt. They were married 25 years ago. No children were born to this union. Mr. Baggott was a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, being one of the first members of that congregation in this city.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. Weary, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church. Interment will be made in Riverview cemetery. The vestrymen of the church will act as pallbearers.

THEY ARE WILLING.

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY WILL ABIDE

By the Decision of Council in Regard to Running Cars Too Fast in East End.

Now that council has requested the East Liverpool and Wellsville Street Railway company to run its cars at less speed in the East End district, the company, it seems, is at somewhat of a disadvantage as to how to remedy the matter, although it is reported they are willing to abide by the request of the city council.

As matters are at present, it is with some dimculty that the motormen make their schedule time in that part of the city, owing to the distance between the East End switch and the loop, which, by the way, is the longest stretch between any two switches along the line. Another matter that is to be taken into consideration is he fact that passengers can only get on cars where stop signs are displayed, while in the past a car would stop at any point to accommodate a passenger. The motormen state that if the request of council is followed out a new switch will have to be constructed or the schedule time changed. For the the present it is apparent that both the company, motormen and passengers are wondering which is the East Liverpool. Trenton and V pest course to pursue.

HUGHES WILL BE PRESIDENT

Special to the News Review.

Wheeling, July 13.—(Special.)—The Brotherhood convention has decided that kilndrawers shall hereafter get $1 50 per day and the foreman $1 75.

The office of national statistician was abolished by the convention and the president will look after the work in the future. The office was held by James Miles, of East Liverpool.

The question of jiggermen on hotel ware was taken up and it was decided that they be given the same wages as before the uniform scale went into operation. This was one part of the trade that was overlooked at the Pittshurg conference.

The report of the trustees was read and showed a decided increase during the past year both in finances and membership.

The balance of the morning session was spent in discussing the incoming executive board and how it shall be constituted. Heretofore the executive board has consisted of members from ing now demand representation on the board and there is likely to be a fight before the matter is settled.

The convention expects to finish up the work tomorrow. The only candidates for the presidency seem to be E. A. Stevenson and Al Hughes, of East Liverpool, and the sentiment seems to be decidedly in favor of Hughes. It is almost conceded that Secretary Duffy will be reelected withcut opposition.

JUDGE HOLE'S DECISION.

The decision of Judge Hole in the Whan-Grim cases against the city of Fast Liverpool and against ex-Mayor Bough has attracted much attention and comment. The almost universal verdict is that right has triumphed. The then city solicitor, Attorney Mc-Garry, made a long drawn out and bitter fight against the payment of the claims against the city by the counan outrage against the taxpayers of this corporation. In battling along this line he quoted the case of Culp vs. the city of Steubenville and a similar case occurring in Columbus, and Judge Hole cited this fact in rendering his decision. Attorney McGarry has fun cause for rejoicing over Judge $2,800 bond. Hole's decision. And now for a second party in this battle. Attorney Mc-Garry vacated the city solicitorship on April 1, 1900, his successor, W. K. Gaston, assuming the office to which he had been elected by the franchises of the people. He at once took hold of the case of Whan and Grim vs. the city of East Liverpool, posted himself fully on the merits of the case, studied the legal side closely, believed in the justice of the defense and at once filed a demurrer before common pleas court, making a strong point of the fact that the prosecutors, Whan and Grim, were not incumbents at the time they claimed remuneration from the city; and further, that there were not facts stated in the petition sufficient to constitute cause tor action; and on these points City

Solicitor Gaston was fully sustained in Judge Hole's decision.

OFFICIALS ARE INVESTIGATING

Lisbon, July 13.—(Special.)—On Wednesday afternoon two young men from Pittsburg alighted from a Fort Wayne train at East Palestine and inquired as to where they could get a drink. Two men standing at the depot informed them that the town was dry, but that there was a good place out at the Klondike, and that they would take them out in case they wanted to go. They accepted the proposition and accompanied the men to the place, where they indulged in several glasses. Here their recollection ceased until several hours later, when one of them awoke to find himself lying in a fence corner on a country road with his pockets rifled of their contents. He found his companion lying near to him in an unconscious condition, also relieved of his belongings. About $60 was taken from the two, nothing being left but their return tickets to Pittsburg. Officials were at once notified and Deputy Howard Noragon went to East Palestine Thursday evening and a close investigation is being made.

JUDGE HOLE'S DECISION.

The decision of Judge Hole in the Whan-Grim cases against the city of Fast Liverpool and against ex-Mayor Bough has attracted much attention and comment. The almost universal verdict is that right has triumphed. The then city solicitor, Attorney Mc-Garry, made a long drawn out and bitter fight against the payment of the claims against the city by the councilmanic body, believing that such payment would be an injustice and an outrage against the taxpayers of this corporation. In battling along this line he quoted the case of Culp vs. the city of Steubenville and a similar case occurring in Columbus, and Judge Hole cited this fact in rendering his decision. Attorney McGarry has fun cause for rejoicing over Judge Hole's decision. And now for a second party in this battle. Attorney Mc-Garry vacated the city solicitorship on April 1, 1900, his successor, W. K. Gaston, assuming the office to which he had been elected by the franchises of the people. He at once took hold of the case of Whan and Grim vs. the city of East Liverpool, posted himself fully on the merits of the case, studied the legal side closely, believed in the justice of the defense and at once filed a demurrer before common pleas court, making a strong point of the fact that the prosecutors. Whan and Grim, were not incumbents at the time they claimed remuneration from the city; and further, that there were not facts stated in the petition sufficient to constitute cause for action; and on these points City

Solicitor Gaston was fully sustained in Judge Hole's decision.

OFFICIALS ARE INVESTIGATING

Lisbon, July 13.—(Special.)—On Wednesday afternoon two young men from Pittsburg alighted from a Fort Wayne train at East Palestine and inquired as to where they could get a drink. Two men standing at the depot informed them that the town was dry, but that there was a good place out at the Klondike, and that they would take them out in case they wanted to go. They accepted the proposition and accompanied the men to the place, where they indulged in several glasses. Here their recollection ceased until several hours later, when one of them awoke to find himself lying in a fence corner on a country road with his pockets rifled of their contents. He found his companion lying near to him in an unconscious condition, also relieved of his belongings. About $60 was taken from the two, nothing being left but their return tickets to Pittsburg. Officials were at once notified and Deputy Howard Noragon went to East Palestine Thursday evening and a close investigation is being made.

A Lady Resident Complains That Scandalous Conduct Controls There.

Editor News Review-I am in a position to know what I am writing about. The conduct of drunken men and loafers about this old graveyard is simply abominable and scandalous. Mayor Davidson and his officers can easily demonstrate this statement to be a very plain truth, if they so desire. It is high time that a halt shall be called on such conduct. I know Mayor Davidson and I do not believe that he will sanction such proceedings. Arrests and heavy fines will have a beneficial effect upon the blackguards who have been indulging in such ruffianism.

A Lady Resident Complains That Scandalous Conduct Controls There.

Editor News Review-I am in a position to know what I am writing about. The conduct of drunken men and loafers about this old graveyard is simply abominable and scandalous. Mayor Davidson and his officers can easily demonstrate this statement to be a very plain truth, if they so desire. It is high time that a halt shall be called on such conduct. I know Mayor Davidson and I do not believe that he will sanction such proceedings. Arrests and heavy fines will have a beneficial effect upon the blackguards who have been indulging in such ruffianism.

Business Men Are Complaining About the Miserable Garbage Wagons.

Editor News Review-I am not a kicker: but I want my rights and the rights of my fellow citizens respected, and I intend that such shall be the case. Garbage wagons drive right through the Diamond with loads of filth fully exposed, and the hot sun beatinw down on the refuse, and the stench is simply horrible and apt to create disease. This morning, right in my presence and the presence of another business man, and a prominent councilman of the city, a portion of the load of garbage fell from the wagon, right in front of my place of business. The irresponsible driver sprang from the vehicle, tossed a part Sample & Co.'s sale of tan shoes.

of an old box back on the wagon and drove off, leaving a lot of pasty, fly drawing, ill smelling, disease Toducing filth upon the street. I do not want to cause anyone trouble or annoyance; but I insist that our city officials shall protect us against a repetition of such offenses.

Of railway emoyes 2,210 were killed and 34,923 're injured during the year.

M'KINLEY & ROOSEVELT.

McKinley and Roosevelt are directly opposite by ancestry, birth, education and practice. McKinley comes from that old Scotch-Irish stock which early settled in Pennsylvania, that loved to fight the Indians and figured so bravely in every battle of the revolution to free the colonies from British rule. President McKinley's grandfather lies buried in an Ohio graveyard and his tombstone tells the heroic story of his duty as a Revolutionary soldier in 1776-83. President McKinley comes of a race and stock that did not furnish a single tory in the revolutionary struggle and that races' descendants have blazed away ever since in the marvelous development of Ohio and Pennsylvania's industrial plants, factories, workshops and on these two great states' farms.

Governor Theodore Roosevelt comes from the Holland Dutch who settled on Manhattan and made it a paradise before the advent of the English. The Roosevelts, Schuylers, Van Rensselaers, Stuyvesants, and the long line of Dutch pioneers and emigrants that so early settled in and about what is now Greater New York, have a history and Stevenson are Presbyterians. Mr. Bryan was colonel of a Nebraska regiment in the Spanish-American war, but by the special action of the governor of his state it never got out of this country and was mustered out without seeing the enemy. In the civil war Mr. Stevenson was a Knight of the Golden Circle, a treasonable organization that gave Mr. Lincoln and the government so much trouble to suppress, and Vallandigham-like, he wandered up and down Illinois making copperhead and butternut speeches to the secession sympathizers. FROM IMPERIALISM,

The President Said We Had Rescued the Filipinos.

OUR CHINESE POLICY OUTLINED.

Points In Speeches of Both the President and Lodge Considered by Some Present Notification to the World - Addresses Also by Hanna, Foraker and Others.

Canton, O., July 13.-Important features of the speech formally notifying President McKinley of his renomination by Senator Lodge and the response by President McKinley were the references to the Chinese situation. This caused a great deal of discussion during the conference following the formal speech-making, and the impression created was that these utterances were a notification to the world that the United States intends to preserve all its rights in China. The impressive portions of the president's speech were his references to the maintenance of the gold standard and the financial public faith, the preservation of a protective tariff, the enlargement of our market, and especially the catchy phrase, "Prosperity at home and prestige abroad." His declaration that the United States had reclaimed "10,000.000 human beings from imperialism" was a decided hit, and there were many requests for him to repeat the sentence. This turn of the word used so much by the opposition was considered one of the adroit features of the speech.

The president seemed at his best. His appearance indicated splendid health, and his voice rang out in clarion tones, reaching the outskirts of the vast throng which surrounded the house and extended over the lawn and across the street. Other speakers were called for.

Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana; Senator Hanna, chairman of the national committe; Chas. Emory Smith, postmaster general; Colone Samuel Parker, of Hawaii, and Senator Lodge were heard-the last named speaking twice. These speakers, with the exception of Colonel Parker, who was called out of compliment to the Pacific islands, took occasion to refer to the recent action of the Democratic national convention in Kansas City. It was the first public occasion in which Republican speakers had attempted to dissect and criticize the platform recently adopted by their opponents. Senator Fairbanks evidently intended to make the money question the dominant issue of the campaign, denying that with 16 to 1 in their platform the Democrats could make "imperialism" the leading issue. Senator Hanna abjured Republican voters to remember the importance of their campaign.

Postmaster General Smith warned his hearers that Democratic success would disarrange the business interests of the country.

In his second speech Senator Lodge resented the criticism of President McKinley by his opponents, and pointed out the difficulty Bryan would have in selecting a cabinet from the men prominent in the conventions at Kansas City and Sioux Falls.

The notification committee and party came from Cleveland on a special train, making the run in one hour and twenty-one minutes. They were met at the station and in carriages escorted to the home of President McKinley. The Tippecanoe club, of Cleveland, was given the place of honor, next to the band. The American flag floated from many business houses and residences along the route of the procession. Other delegations from nearby cities and towns helped to swell the large throng.

After luncheon had been served, the party leaders went with the president into the house. There were a number of informal conferences but the time was devoted almost wholly to giving the visitors an opportunity to become personally acquainted with the president. While there was a considerable discussion of politics and future politics, this was confined largely to the members of the national committee. Later, the last of the Cleveland party, including Sanator Hanna, Mr. Bliss, Mr, Payne and others left the McKinley residence to take the train for home. President McKinley accompanied them to their carriages and bade them good bye.

Mr. Lodge said: MR. PRESIDENT-This committee, representing every state in the nation, and the organized territories of the United States, was duly appointed to announce to you, formally, your nomination by the Republican national convention, which met in Philadelphia on June 19 last, as the candidate of the Republican party for president of the United States for the term beginning March 4, 1901. To be selected by the Republican party as their candidate for this great office is always one of the highest honors which can be given to any man. This nomination, however, comes to you, sir, under circumstances which give it a higher significance and make it an even deeper expression of honor and trust than usual. You were nominated unanimously at Philadelphia. You received the unforced vote of every delegate, from every state and every territory. The harmony of sentiment which appears on the face of the record was but the reflection of the deeper harmony which existed in the hearts and minds of the delegates. Without factions, without dissent, with profound satissaction and eager enthusiasm, you were nominated for the presidency by the united voice of the representatives of our great party, in which there is neither sign of division nor shadow of turning. Such unanimity, always remarkable, is here the more impressive because it accompanies a second nomination to the great office which you have held for four years. It is not the facile triumph of hope over experience, but the sober approval of conduct and character tested in many trials and tried by heavy and extraordinary responsibilities. With the exception of the period in which Washington organized the nation and built the state, and of those other awful years when Lincoln led his people through the agony of civil war and saved from destruction the work of Washington, there has never been a presidential term in our history so crowded with great events, so filled with new and momentous questions as that which is now drawing to its end. True to the declarations which were made at St. Louis in 1806, you, sir, united with the Republicans in congress in the revision of the tariff and the re-establishment of the protective policy.

You maintained our credit and upheld the gold standard, leading the party by your advice to the passage of the great measure which is today the bulwark of both. You lead again in the policy which has made Hawaii a possession of the United States. On all these questions you fulfilled the hopes and justified the confidence of the people, who four years ago put trust in our promise. But on all these questions, also, you had as guides, not only your own principles, the well considered results of years of training and reflection, but also, the plain declarations of the national convention which nominated you in 1896. Far different was it when the Cuban question, which we had also promised to settle, brought first, war, and then peace, with Spain. Congress declared war, but you, as commander-inchief, had to carry it on. You did so, and history records unbroken victory from the first shot of the Nashville to the day when the pro tocol was signed. The peace, you had to make alone. Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines; you had to assume the responsibility of taking them all from Spain. Alone, and weighted with the terrible resonsibility of the unchecked war powers of the constitution, you were obliged to govern these islands and to repress rebellion and disorder in the Philippines. No party creed defined the course you were to follow. Courage, foresight, comprehension of American interests, both now and in the uncharted future, faith in the American people and in their fitness for great tasks, were then your only guides and counsellors. Thus, you framed and put in operation this great new policy which has made us at once master of the Antilles and a great eastern power, holding firmly our possessions on both sides of the Pacific.

In the new and strange ever exists fear, and the courage and prescence which accept them, always arouse criticism and attack. Yet a great departure and a new policy were never more quickly justified than those undertaken by you. On the possession of the Philippines rests the admirable diplomacy which warned all nations that American trade was not to be shut from China. It is to Manila that we owe the ability to send troops and ships in this time of stress to the defense of our ministers, jur missionaries, our consuls and our merthants in China, instead of being compelled to leave our citizens to the casual protection of other powers, as would have been unavoidable had we flung the Philippines away and withdrawn from the Orient.

Rest assured, sir, that the vigorous measures which you have thus been enabled to take, and that all further measures in the same direction which you may take, for the protection of American lives and property will receive the hearty support of the people of the United States, who are now, as always, determined that the American citizen shall be protected at any cost in all his rights, everywhere, and at all times. It is to Manila again, to our fleet in the bay, and our army on the land that we shall owe the power, when these seenes of blood in China are closed, to exact reparation, to enforce stern justice, and to insist, in the final settlement, upon an open door to all that vast market for our fast growing commerce.

Events, moving with terrible rapidity, have been swift witnesses to the wisdom of your action in the east. The Philadelphia convention has adopted your policy both in the Antilles and the Philippines, and has made it their own and that of the Republican party.

Your election, sir, next November assures to us the continuance of that policy abroad and in our new possessions. To entrust these difficult and vital questions to other hands, at once incompetent and hostile, would be a disaster to us, and a still more unrelieved disaster to our posterity. Your election means not only protection to our industries, but the maintenance of a sound currency and of the gold standard, the very cornerstones of our economic and financial welfare.

Should these be shaken as they would be by the success of our opponents, the whole fabric of our business confidence and prosperity would fall into ruin. Your defeat would be the signal for 'the advance of free trade, for the anarchy of a debased and unstable currency, for business panic, depression and hard times, and for the wreck of our foreign policy. Your election and the triumph of the Repub lican party-which we believe to be as sure as the coming of the day-will make certain the steady protection of our industries, sound money and a vigorous and intelligent foreign policy. They will continue those conditions of good government and wise legislation, so essential to the prosperity and well being which have blessed our country in such abunance during the past four years.

Thus announcing to you, sir, your nomination as the Republican candidate for the presidency, we have the honor also to submit to you the declaration of principles made by the national convention, which, we trust, will receive your approval. We can assure you of the faithful and earnest support of the Republican party in every state, and we beg you to believe that we discharge here today, with feelings of the deepest personal gratification, this honorable duty imposed upon us by the convention. President McKinley, in reply, said:

Senator Lodge and Gentlemen of the Notification Committee: The message which you bring to me is one of signal honor. It is also a summons to duty. A single nomination for the office of president by a great party which in 32 years out of 40 has been triumphant at national elections, is a distinction which I gratefully cherish. To receive unanimous renomination by the same party is an expression of regard and a pledge of continued confidence for which it is difficult to make adequate acknowledgment.

If anything exceeds the honors of the office of President of the United States, it is the responsibility which attaches to it. Having been invested with both, I do not underappraise either. Any one who has borne the anxieties and burdens of the presidential office, espec ially in times of national trouble, can not con template assuming it a second time without profoundly realizing the severe exactions and the solemn obligations which it imposes, and this feeling is accentuated by the momentous problems which now press for settlement. If my countrymen shall confirm the action of vember, 1 shan, craving divine guidance, undertake the exalted trust, to administer it for the interest and honor of the country and the well being of the new peoples who have become the objects of our care. The declaration of principles adopted by the convention has my hearty approval. At some future date I will consider its subjects in detail and will by letter communicate to your chairman a more formal acceptance of the nomination.

On a like occasion, four years ago, I said. "The party that supplied by legislation the vast revenues for the conduct of our greatest war, that promptly restored the credit of our country at its close; that from its abundant revenues paid off a large share of the debt incurred by this war, and that resumed specie payments and placed our paper currency upon a sound and enduring basis, can be safely trusted to preserve both our credit and currency with honor, stability and inviolability. The American people hold the financial honor of our government as sacred as our flag, and can be relied upon to guard it with the same sleepless vigilance. They hold its preservation above party fealty and have often demonstrated that party ties avail nothing when the spotless credit of our country is threatened.

"The dollar paid to the farmer, the wage earner and the pensioner must continue for ever equal in purchasing and debt-paying power to the dollar paid to any government

"Our industrial supremacy, our productive capacity, our business and commercial prosperity, our labor and its rewards, our national credit and currency, our proud financial honor and our splendid free citizenship, the birthright of every American, are all involved in the pending campaign, and thus every home in the land is directly and intimately interested with their proper settlement.

"Our domestic trade must be won back and our idle working people employed in gainful occupations at American wages. Our home market must be restored to its proud rank of first in the world, and our foreign trade, so precipitately cut off by adverse national legislation, reopened on fair and equitable terms for our surplus agricultural and manufactur-

Public confidence must be resumed and the skill, energy and the capital of our country find ample employment at home. The government of the United States must raise money enough to meet both its current expenses and increasing needs. Its revenues should be so raised as to protect the material interests of our people, with the lightest possible drain upon their resources, and maintaining that high standard of civilization which has distinguished our country for more than a century of its existence.

"The national credit, which has thus far fortunately resisted every assault upon it, must and will be upheld and strengthered. If sufficient revenues are provided for the support of the government there will be no necessity for borrowing money and increasing the public debt."

Three and one-haif; years of legislation and administration have been concluded since these words were spoken. Have those to whom was confided the direction of the government kept their pledges? The record is made up. The people are not unfamiliar with what has been accomplished. The gold standard has been re affirmed and strengthened. The endless chain has been broken and the drain upon our gold reserve no longer frets us. The credit of the country has been advanced to the highest place among all nations. We are refunding our bonded dept, bearing 3 and 4 and 5 per cent, at 2 per cent, a lower rate than that of any other country, and already more than $300,000,000 have been so funded, with a gain to the government of many millions of dollars Instead of the 16 to 1, for which our opponents contended four years ago, legislation has been enacted which, waile utilizing all forms of our money, secures one fixed value for every dollar, and that the best known to the civilized

A tariff which protects American labor and industry and provides ample revenues has been written in public law. We have lower interests and higher wages; more money and fewer mortgages. The world's markets have been opened to American products, which go now where they have never gone before. We have passed from a bond-issuing to a bond-paying nation; from a nation of borrowers to a nation of lenders; from a deficiency in revenue to a surplus; from fear to confidence; from enforced idleness to profitable employment. The public faith has been upheld; public order has been maintained. We have prosperity at home and prestige abroad.

Unfortunately the threat of 1896 has just been renewed by the allied parties without abatement or modification. The gold bill has been denounced and its repeal demanded. The menace of 16 to 1, therefore, still hangs over us with all its dire consequence to credit and confidence; to business and industry. The enemies of sound currency are rallying their scattered forces. The people must once more unite and overcome the advocates of repudiation and must not relax their energy until the battle for public honor and honest money shall again triumph.

A congress which will sustain and if need be strengthen the present law can prevent a financial catastrophe which ever y lover of the republic is interested to avert.

Not satisfied with assaulting the carrency and credit of the government, our political ad versaries condemn the tariff law enacted at the extra session of congress in 1897, known as the Dingley act, passed in obedience to the will of the people expressed at the election in the preceding November, a law which at once stimulated our industries, opened the idle fac tories and mines and gave to the laborer and to the farmer fair returns for their toil and investment. Shall we go back to a tariff which brings deficiency in our revenues and destruction to our industrial enterprises? Faithful to its pledges in these internal affairs, how has the government discharged its international duties Our platform of 1896 declared "the Hawaiian islands should be controlled by the United States and no foreign power should be per mitted to interfere with them." This purpose has been fully accomplished by annexation and delegates from those beautiful islands par ticipated in the convention for which youspeak today. In the great conference of na tions at The Hague, we reaffirmed before the world the Monroe doctrine and our adherence to it and our determination, not to participate in the complications of Europe. We have happily ended the European alliance in Samoa securing to ourselves one of the most valuable the convention at our national election in No- harbors in the Pacific ocean while the open door in China gives us fair and equal compete tion in the vast trade of the Orient. Some things have happened which were not prom ised, nor even foreseen, and our purpose in relation to them must not be left in doubt. A just war has been waged for humanity and with it have come new problems and responsi

Spain has been ejected from the western hemisphere and our flag floats over her for mer territory. Cuba has been liberated and our guarantees to her people will be sacredly executed. A beneficent government has been provided for Porto Rico. The Philippines are ours and American authority must be supreme throughout the archipelago. There will be amnesty broad and liberal, but no abatement of our rights, no abandonment of our duty. There must be no scuttle policy We will fulfill in the Philippines the obliga tions imposed by the triumphs of our arms and by the treaty of peace; by international law, by the nation's sense of honor and, more than all, by the rights, interests and condition of the Philippine people themselves. No out side interference blocks the way to peace and a stable government. The obstructionists are here, not elsewhere. They may postpone, but they cannot defeat the realization of the high purpose of this nation to restore order to the islands and to establish a just and generous government, in which the inhabitants shall have the targest participation for which they are capable. The organized forces, which have been misled into rebeliion, have been dis persed by our faithful soldiers and sailors and the people of the island, delivered from an archy, pillage and oppression, recognize American sovereignty as the symbol and pleage of peace, justice, law, religious freedom, education, the security of life and property and the we fare and prosperity of their several com munities.

We reasert the early principle of the Republican party, sustained by unbroken judi cial precedents, that the representatives of the people, in congress assembled, have full legis lative power over territory belonging to the United States, subject to the fundamental safeguards of liberty, justice and personal rights, and are vested with ample authority to act "for the highest interests of our nation and the people entrusted to its care." This doctrine, first proclaimed in the cause of freedom, will never be used as a weapon for oppression. I am glad to be assured by you that what we have done in the far east has the approval of the country. The sudden and terrible crisis in China calls for the gravest consideration, and you will not expect from me now any further expression than to say that my best efforts shall be given to the immediate purpose of protecting the lives of our citizens who are in peril with the ultimate object of the peace and weifare of China, the safeguarding of all our treaty rights and the maintenance of those principles of impartial intercourse to which the civilized world is pledged.

I can not conclude without congratulating my countrymen upon the strong, national sentiment which finds expression in every part of our common country and the increased respect with which the American name is greeted throughout the world. We have been moving in untried paths, but our steps have been guided by honor and duty. There will be no turning aside, no wavering, no retreat. No blow has been struck, except for liberty and humanity, and none will be. We will perform. without fear, every national and international obligation.

The Republican party was dedicated to freedom 44 years ago. It has been the party of liberty and emancipation from that hour; not of profession but of performance. It broke the shackles of 4,000,000 slaves and made them free, and to the party of Lincoln has come another supreme opportunity which it has bravely met in the liberation of 10,000,000 of the human family from the yoke of imperial ism. In its solution of great problems, in its performance of high duties, it has had the support of members of all parties in the past and confidently invokes their co-operation in the future.

Permit me to express, Mr. Chairman, my most sincere appreciation of the complimentary terms in which you convey the official notice of my nomination and my thanks to the members of the committee and the great constituency which they represent for this additional evidence of their favor and support.

FROM IMPERIALISM,

The President Said We Had Rescued the Filipinos.

OUR CHINESE POLICY OUTLINED.

Points In Speeches of Both the President and Lodge Considered by Some Present Notification to the World - Addresses Also by Hanna, Foraker and Others.

CANTON, O., July 13.-Important features of the speech formally notifying President McKinley of his renomination by Senator Lodge and the response by President McKinley were the references to the Chinese situation. This caused a great deal of discussion during the conference following the formal speech-making, and the impression created was that these utterances were a notification to the world that the United States intends to preserve all its rights in China. The impressive portions of the president's speech were his references to the maintenance of the gold standard and tne financial public faith, the preservation of a protective tariff, the enlargement of our market, and especially the catchy phrase, "Prosperity at home and prestige abroad." His declaration that the United States had reclaimed "10,000.000 human beings from imperialism" was a decided hit, and there were many requests for him to repeat the sentence. This turn of the word used so much by the opposition was considered one of the adroit features of the speech.

The president seemed at his best. His appearance indicated splendid health, and his voice rang out in clarion tones, reaching the outskirts of the vast throng which surrounded the house and extended over the lawn and across the street.

Other speakers were called for.

Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana; Senator Hanna, chairman of the national committe; Chas. Emory Smith, postmaster general; Colonel Samuel Parker, of Hawaii, and Senator Lodge were heard—the last named speaking twice. These speakers, with the exception of Colonei Parker, who was called out of compliment to the Pacific islands, took occasion to refer to the recent action of the Democratic national convention in Kansas City. It was the first public occasion in which Republican speakers had attempted to dissect and criticize the platform recently adopted by their opponents. Senator Fairbanks evidently intended to make the money question the dominant issue of the campaign, denying that with 16 to 1 in their platform the Democrats could make "imperialism" the leading issue. Senator Hanna abjured Republican voters to remember the importance of their campaign.

Postmaster General Smith warned his hearers that Democratic success would disarrange the business interests of the country.

In his second speech Senator Lodge resented the criticism of President McKinley by his opponents, and pointed out the difficulty Bryan would have in selecting a cabinet from the men prominent in the conventions at Kansas City

The notification committee and party came from Cleveland on a special train, making the run in one hour and twenty-one minutes. They were met at the station and in carriages escorted to the home of President McKinley. The Tippecanoe club, of Cleveland, was given the place of honor, next to the band. The American flag floated from many business houses and residences along the route of the procession. Other delegations from nearby cities and towns helped to swell the large

After luncheon had been served, the party leaders went with the president into the house. There were a number of informal conferences, but the time was devoted almost wholly to giving the visitors an opportunity to become ersonally acquainted with the president. While there was a considerable discussion of politics and future politics, this was confined largely to the members of the national committee. Later, the last of the Cieveland party, including Sanator Hanna, Mr. Bliss, Mr. Payne and others left the McKinley residence to take the train for home. President McKinley accompanied them to their carriages and bade them

Mr. Lodge said:

MR. PRESIDENT-This committee, representing every state in the nation, and the organized territories of the United States, was duly appointed to announce to you, formally, your nomination by the Republican national convention, which met in Philadelphia on June 19 last, as the candidate of the Republican party for president of the United States for the term beginning March 4, 1901. To be selected by the Republican party as their candidate for this great office is always one of the highest honors which can be given so any man. This nomination, however, comes to you, sir. under circumstances which give it a higher significance and make it an even deeper expression of honor and trust than usual. You were nominated unanimously at Philadelphia. You received the unforced vote of every delegate, from every state and every territory.

The harmony of sentiment which appears on the face of the record was but the reflection of the deeper harmony which existed in the hearts and minds of the delegates. Without factions, without dissent, with profound satiseaction and eager enthusiasm, you were nominated for the presidency by the united voice of the representatives of our great party, in which there is neither sign of division nor shadow of turning. Such unanimity, always remarkable, is here the more impressive because it accompanies a second nomination to the great office which you have held for four years. It is not the facile triumph of hope over experience, but the sober approval of conduct and character tested in many trials and tried by heavy and extraordinary responsibilities. With the exception of the period in which Washington organized the na-tion and built the state, and of those other awful years when Liftcoin led his people through the agony of civil war and saved from destruction the work of Washington, there has never been a presidential term in our history so crowded with great events, so filled with new and momentous questions as that which is now drawing to its end. True to the declarations which were made at St. Louis in 18-6, you, sir, united with the Republicans in congress in the revision of the tariff and the re-establishment of the protective policy.

You maintained our credit and upheld the gold standard, leading the party by your advice to the passage of the great measure which is today the bulwark of both. You lead again in the policy which has made Hawaii a possession of the United States. On all these questions you fulfilled the hopes and justified the confidence of the people, who four years ago put trust in our promise. But on all these questions, also, you had as guides, not only your own principles, the well considered results of years of training and reflection, but also, the plain declarations of the national convention which nominated you in 1896. Far different was it when the Cuban question, which we had also promised to settle, brought first, war, and then peace, with Spain. Congress declared war, but you, as commander-inchief, had to carry it on. You did so, and history records unbroken victory from the first shot of the Nashville to the day when the pro tocol was signed. The peace, you had to make alone. Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines; you had to assume the responsibility of taking them all from Spain. Alone, and weighted with the terrible resonsibility of the unchecked war powers of the constitution, you were obliged to govern these islands and to repress rebellion and disorder in the Philippines. No party creed defined the course you were to follow. Courage, foresight, comprehension of American interests, both now and in the uncharted future, faith in the American people and in their fitness for great tasks, were then your only guides and counsellors.

Thus, you framed and put in operation this great new policy which has made us at once master of the Antilles and a great eastern power, holding firmly our possessions on both sides of the Pacific.

In the new and strange ever exists fear, and the courage and prescence which accept them, always arouse criticism and attack. Yet a great departure and a new policy were never more quickly justified than those undertaken by you. On the possession of the Philippines rests the admirable diplomacy which warned all nations that American trade was not to be shut from China. It is to Manila that we owe the ability to send troops and ships in this time of stress to the defense of our ministers, our missionaries, our consuls and our merhants in China, instead of being compelled to leave our citizens to the casual protection of other powers, as would have been unavoidable had we flung the Philippines away and withdrawn from the Orient.

Rest assured, sir, that the vigorous measures which you have thus been enabled to take, and that all further measures in the same direction which you may take, for the protection of American lives and property will receive the hearty support of the people of the United States, who are now, as always, determined that the American citizen shall be protected at any cost in all his rights, everywhere, and at all times. It is to Manila again, to our fleet in the bay, and our army on the land that we shall owe the power, when these scenes of blood in China are closed, to exact reparation, to enforce stern justice, and to insist, in the final settlement, upon an open door to all that vast market for our fast growing commerce.

Events, moving with terrible rapidity, have been swift witnesses to the wisdom of your action in the east. The Philadelphia convention has adopted your policy both in the Antilles and the Philippines, and has made it their own and that of the Republican party.

Your election, sir, next November assures to us the continuance of that policy abroad and in our new possessions. To entrust these difficult and vital questions to other hands, at once incompetent and hostile, would be a disaster to us, and a still more unrelieved disaster to our posterity. Your election means not only protection to our industries, but the maintenance of a sound currency and of the gold standard, the very cornerstones of our economic and financial welfare.

Should these be shaken as they would be by the success of our opponents, the whole fabric of our business confidence and prosperity would fall into ruin. Your defeat would be the signal for the advance of free trade, for the anarchy of a debased and unstable currency, for business panic, depression and hard tiries, and for the wreck of our foreign policy. Your election and the triumph of the Republican party-which we believe to be as sure as the coming of the day-will make certain the steady protection of our industries, sound money and a vigorous and intelligent foreign policy. They will continue those conditions of good government and wise legislation, so essential to the prosperity and well being which have blessed our country in such abunance during the past four years.

Thus announcing to you, sir, your nomina tion as the Republican candidate for the presidency, we have the honor also to submit to you the declaration of principles made by the national convention, which, we trust, will receive your approval. We can assure you of the faithful and earnest support of the Republican party in every state, and we beg you to believe that we discharge here today, with feelings of the deepest personal gratification, this honorable duty imposed upon us by the convention. President McKinley, in reply, said:

tion Committee: The message which you bring to me is one of signal honor. It is also a summons to duty. A single nomination for the office of president by a great party which in 32 years out of 40 has been triumphant at national elections, is a distinction which I gratefully cherish. To receive unanimous renomination by the same party is an expression of regard and a pledge of continued confidence for which it is difficult to make adequate acknowledgment. If anything exceeds the honors of the office of President of the United States, it is the responsibility which attaches to it. Having been invested with both, I do not underappraise either. Any one who has borne the anxieties and burdens of the presidential office, especially in times of national trouble, can not contemplate assuming it a second time without profoundly realizing the severe exactions and the solemn obligations which it imposes, and this feeling is accentuated by the momentous problems which now press for settlement. If my countrymen shall confirm the action of vember, 1 shan, craving divine guidance, undertake the exalfed trust, to administer it for the interest and honor of the country and the well being of the new peoples who have become the objects of our care. The declaration of principles adopted by the convention has my hearty approval. At some future date I will consider its subjects in detail and will by letter communicate to your chairman a more formal acceptance of the nomination.

On a like occasion, four years ago, I said: "The party that supplied by legislation the vast revenues for the conduct of our greatest war, that promptly restored the credit of our country at its close; that from its abundant revenues paid off a large share of the debt incurred by this war, and that resumed specie payments and placed our paper currency upon a sound and enduring basis, can be safely trusted to preserve both our credit and currency with honor, stability and inviolability. The American people hold the financial honor of our government as sacred as our flag, and can be relied upon to guard it with the same sleepless vigilance. They hold its preservation above party fealty and have often demonstrated that party ties avail nothing when the spotless credit of our country is threatened.

"The dollar paid to the farmer, the wage earner and the pensioner must continue forever equal in purchasing and debt-paying power to the dollar paid to any government creditor.

"Our industrial supremacy, our productive capacity, our business and commercial prosperity, our labor and its rewards, our national credit and currency, our proud financial honor and our splendid free citizenship, the birthright of every American, are all involved in the pending campaign, and thus every home in the land is directly and intimately interested with their proper settlement.

"Our domestic trade must be won back and our idle working people employed in gainful occupations at American wages. Our home market must be restored to its proud rank of first in the world, and our foreign trade, so precipitately cut off by adverse national legislation, reopened on fair and equitable terms for our surplus agricultural and manufacturing products.

Public confidence must be resumed and the skill, energy and the capital of our country find ample employment at home. The government of the United States must raise money enough to meet both its current expenses and increasing needs. Its revenues should be so raised as to protect the material interests of our people, with the lightest possible drain upon their resources, and maintaining that high standard of civilization which has distinguished our country for more than a century of its existence.

"The national credit, which has thus far fortunately resisted every assault upon it, must and will be upheld and strengtherfed. If sufficient revenues are provided for the support of the government there will be no necessity for borrowing money and increasing the public

Three and one-haif years of legislation and administration have been concluded since these words were spoken. Have those to whom was confided the direction of the government kept their pledges? The record is made up. The people are not unfamiliar with what has been accomplished. The gold standard has been re affirmed and strengthened. The endless chain has been broken and the drain upon our gold reserve no longer frets us. The credit of the country has been advanced to the highest place among all nations. We are refunding our bonded dept, bearing 3 and 4 and 5 per cent, at 2 per cent, a lower rate than that of any other country, and already more than $300,000,000 have been so funded, with a gain to the government of many millions of dollars Instead of the 16 to 1, for which our opponents contended four years ago, legislation has been enacted which, waile utilizing all forms of our money, secures one fixed value for every dollar, and that the best known to the civilized

A tariff which protects American labor and industry and provides ample revenues has been written in public law. We have lower interests and higher wages; more money and fewer mortgages. The world's markets have been opened to American products, which go now where they have never gone before. We have passed from a bond-issuing to a bond-paying nation; from a nation of borrowers to a nation of lenders; from a deficiency in revenue to a surplus; from fear to confidence; from enforced idleness to profitable employment. The public faith has been upheld; public order has been maintained. We have prosperity at home and prestige abroad

Unfortunately the threat of 1896 has just been renewed by the allied parties without abatement or modification. The gold bill has been denounced and its repeal demanded. The menace of 16 to 1, therefore, still hangs over us with all its dire consequence to credit and confidence; to business and industry. The enemies of sound currency are rallying their scattered forces. The people must once more unite and overcome the advocates of repudiation and must not relax their energy until the battle for public honor and honest money shall again triumph.

A congress which will sustain and if need be strengthen the present law can prevent a financial catastrophe which ever y lover of the republic is interested to avert.

Not satisfied with assaulting the carrency and credit of the government, our political adversaries condemn the tariff law enacted at the extra session of congress in 1897, known as the Dingley act, passed in obedience to the will of the people expressed at the election in the preceding November, a law which at once stimulated our industries, opened the idle factories and mines and gave to the laborer and to the farmer fair returns for their toil and investment. Shall we go back to a tariff which brings deficiency in our revenues and destruction to our industrial enterprises?

Faithful to its pledges in these internal affairs, how has the government discharged its international duties?

Our platform of 1896 declared "the Hawaiian islands should be controlled by the United States and no foreign power should be per mitted to interfere with them." This purpose has been fully accomplished by annexation, and delegates from those beautiful islands participated in the convention for which youspeak today. In the great conference of nations at The Hague, we reaffirmed before the world the Monroe doctrine and our adherence to it and our determination not to participate in the complications of Europe. We have happily ended the European alliance in Samoa, securing to ourselves one of the most valuable the convention at our national election in Nor harbors in the Pacific cosan while the open door in China gives us fair and equal competition in the vast trade of the Orient. Some things have happened which were not promised, nor even foreseen, and our purpose in relation to them must not be left in doubt. A just war has been waged for humanity and with it have come new problems and responsi-

Spain has been ejected from the western hemisphere and our flag floats over her former territory. Cuba has been liberated and our guarantees to her people will be sacredly executed. A beneficent government has been provided for Porto Rico. The Philippines are ours and American authority must be supreme throughout the archipelago. There will be amnesty broad and liberal, but no abatement of our rights, no abandonment of our duty. There must be no scuttle policy We will fulfill in the Philippines the obliga tions imposed by the triumphs of our arms and by the treaty of peace; by international law, by the nation's sense of honor and, more than all, by the rights, interests and condition of the Philippine people themselves. No outside interference blocks the way to peace and a stable government. The obstructionists are here, not elsewhere. They may postpone, but they cannot defeat the realization of the high purpose of this nation to restore order to the islands and to establish a just and generous government, in which the inhabitants shall have the largest participation for which they are capable. The organized forces, which have been misled into rebeliion, have been dispersed by our faithful soldiers and sailors and the people of the island, delivered from an archy, pillage and oppression, recognize American sovereignty as the symbol and pleage of peace, justice, law, religious freedom, education, the security of life and property and the we fare and prosperity of their several com munities.

We reasert the early principle of the Republican party, sustained by unbroken judicial precedents, that the representatives of the people, in congress assembled, have full legis lative power over territory belonging to the United States, subject to the fundamental safeguards of liberty, justice and personal rights, and are vested with ample authority to act "for the highest interests of our nation and the people entrusted to its care." This doctrine, first proclaimed in the cause of freedom, will never be used as a weapon for oppression. I am glad to be assured by you that what we have done in the far east has the approval of the country. The sudden and terrible crisis in China calls for the gravest consideration, and you will not expect from me now any further expression than to say that my best efforts shall be given to the immediate purpose of protecting the lives of our citizens who are in peril with the ultimate object of the peace and weifare of China, the safeguarding of all our treaty rights and the maintenance of those principles of impartial intercourse to which the civilized world is pledged.

I can not conclude without congratulating my countrymen upon the strong, national sentiment which finds expression in every part of our common country and the increased respect with which the American name is greeted throughout the world. We have been moving in untried paths, but our steps have been guided by honor and duty. There will be no turning aside, no wavering, no retreat. No blow has been struck, except for liberty and humanity, and none will be. We will perform. without fear, every national and international obligation.

The Republican party was dedicated to free dom 44 years ago. It has been the party of liberty and emancipation from that hour; not of profession but of performance. It broke the shackles of 4,000,000 slaves and made them free, and to the party of Lincoln has come another supreme opportunity which it has bravely met in the liberation of 10,000,000 of the human family from the yoke of imperialism. In its solution of great problems, in its performance of high duties, it has had the support of members of all parties in the past and confidently invokes their co-operation in

Permit me to express, Mr. Chairman, my most sincere appreciation of the complimentary terms in which you convey the official notice of my nomination and my thanks to the members of the committee and the great constituency which they represent for this additional evidence of their favor and support.

No party creed defined the course you were to follow. Courage, foresight, comprehension of American interests, both now and in the uncharted future, faith in the American people and in their fitness for great tasks, were then your only guides and counsellors.

Thus, you framed and put in operation this great new policy which has made us at once master of the Antilles and a great eastern power, holding firmly our possessions on both sides of the Pacific.

In the new and strange ever exists fear, and the courage and prescence which accept them, always arouse criticism and attack. Yet a great departure and a new policy were never more quickly justified than those undertaken by you. On the possession of the Philippines rests the admirable diplomacy which warned all nations that American trade was not to be shut from China. It is to Manila that we owe the ability to send troops and ships in this time of stress to the defense of our ministers, fur missionaries, our consuls and our merhants in China, instead of being compelled to leave our citizens to the casual protection of other powers, as would have been unavoidable had we flung the Philippines away and withdrawn from the Orient.

Rest assured, sir, that the vigorous measures which you have thus been enabled to take, and that all further measures in the same direction which you may take, for the protection of American lives and property will receive the hearty support of the people of the United States, who are now, as always, determined that the American citizen shall be protected at any cost in all his rights, everywhere, and at all times. It is to Manila again, to our fleet in the bay, and our army on the land that we shall owe the power, when these seenes of blood in China are closed, to exact reparation, to enforce stern justice, and to insist, in the final settlement, upon an open door to all that vast market for our fast growing commerce.

Events, moving with terrible rapidity, have been swift witnesses to the wisdom of your action in the east. The Philadelphia convention has adopted your policy both in the Antilles and the Philippines, and has made it their own and that of the Republican party.

Your election, sir, next November assures to us the continuance of that policy abroad and in our new possessions. To entrust these difficult and vital questions to other hands, at once incompetent and hostile, would be a disaster to us, and a still more unrelieved disaster to our posterity. Your election means not only protection to our industries, but the maintenance of a sound currency and of the gold standard, the very cornerstones of our econe mic and financial welfare.

Should these be shaken as they would be by the success of our opponents, the whole fabric of our business confidence and prosperity would fall into ruin. Your defeat would be the signal for the advance of free trade, for the anarchy of a debased and unstable currency, for business panic, depression and hard times, and for the wreck of our foreign policy. Your election and the triumph of the Republican party-which we believe to be as sure as the coming of the day-will make certain the steady protection of our industries, sound money and a vigorous and intelligent foreign policy. They will continue those conditions of good government and wise legislation, so essential to the prosperity and well being which have blessed our country in such abunance during the past four years.

Thus announcing to you, sir, your nomination as the Republican candidate for the presidency, we have the honor also to submit to you the declaration of principles made by the national convention, which, we trust, will receive your approval. We can assure you of the faithful and earnest support of the Republican party in every state, and we beg you to believe that we discharge here today, with feelings of the deepest personal gratification, this honorable duty imposed upon us by the convention. President McKinley, in reply, said:

Senator Lodge and Gentlemen of the Notification Committee:

The message which you bring to me is one of signal honor. It is also a summons to duty. A single nomination for the office of president by a great party which in 32 years out of 40 has been triumphant at national elections, is a distinction which I gratefully cherish. To receive unanimous renomination by the same party is an expression of regard and a pledge of continued confidence for which it is difficult to make adequate acknowledgment.

If anything exceeds the honors of the office of President of the United States, it is the responsibility which attaches to it. Having been invested with both, I do not underappraise either. Any one who has borne the anxieties and burdens of the presidential office, especially in times of national trouble, can not contemplate assuming it a second time without profoundly realizing the severe exactions and the solemn obligations which it imposes, and this feeling is accentuated by the momentous problems which now press for settlement. If my countrymen shall confirm the action of the convention at our national election in No- harbors in the Pacific cesan, while the open vember, 1 shan, craving divine guidance, undertake the exalfed trust, to administer it for the interest and honor of the country and the well being of the new peoples who have become the objects of our care. The declaration of principles adopted by the convention has my hearty approval. At some future date I will consider its subjects in detail and will by letter communicate to your chairman a more formal acceptance of the nomination.

On a like occasion, four years ago. I said "The party that supplied by legislation the vast revenues for the conduct of our greatest war, that promptly restored the credit of our country at its close; that from its abundant revenues paid off a large share of the debt incurred by this war, and that resumed specie payments and placed our paper currency upon a sound and enduring basis, can be safely trusted to preserve both our credit and cur rency with honor, stability and inviolability The American people hold the financial honor of our government as sacred as our flag, and can be relied upon to guard it with the same sleepless vigilance. They hold its preservation above party fealty and have often demonstrated that party ties avail nothing when the spotiess credit of our country is threatened.

"The dollar paid to the farmer, the wage earner and the pensioner must continue forever equal in purchasing and debt-paying power to the dollar paid to any government creditor.

"Our industrial supremacy, our productive capacity, our business and commercial prosperity, our labor and its rewards, our national credit and currency, our proud financial honor and our splendid free citizenship, the birthright of every American, are all involved in the pending campaign, and thus every home in the land is directly and intimately interested with their proper settlement.

"Our domestic trade must be won back and our idle working people employed in gainful occupations at American wages. Our home market must be restored to its proud rank of first in the world, and our foreign trade, so precipitately cut off by adverse national legislation, reopened on fair and equitable terms for our surplus agricultural and manufactur ing products.

'Public confidence must be resumed and the skill, energy and the capital of our country find ample employment at home. The government of the United States must raise money enough to meet both its current expenses and increasing needs. Its revenues should be so raised as to protect the material interests of our people, with the lightest possible drain upon their resources, and maintaining that high standard of civilization which has distinguished our country for more than a century of its existence.

"The national credit, which has thus far for tunately resisted every assault upon it, must and will be upheid and strengtheded. If sufficient revenues are provided for the support of the government there will be no necessity for borrowing money and increasing the public

Three and one-half years of legislation and administration have been concluded since these words were spoken. Have those to whom was confided the direction of the government kept their pledges? The record is made up. The people are not untamiliar with what has been accomplished. The gold standard has been re affirmed and strengthened. The endless chain has been broken and the drain upon our gold reserve no longer frets us. The credit of the country has been advanced to the highest place among all nations. We are refunding our bonded dept, bearing 3 and 4 and 5 per cent, at 2 per cent, a lower rate than that of any other country, and already more than $300,000,000 have been so funded, with a gain to the government of many millions of dollars Instead of the 16 to 1, for which our opponents contended four years ago, legislation has been enacted which, waile utilizing all forms of our money, secures one fixed value for every dollar, and that the best known to the civilized

A tariff which protects American labor and industry and provides ample revenues has beeu written in public law. We have lower interests and higher wages; more money and fewer mortgages. The world's markets have been opened to American products, which w where they have never gone We have passed from a bond-issuing to a bond-paying nation; from a nation of borrowers to a nation of lenders; from a deficiency in revenue to a surplus; from fear to confidence; from enforced idleness to profitable employment. The public faith has been upheld; public order has been maintained. We have prosperity at home and prestige abroad.

Unfortunately the threat of 1896 has just been renewed by the allied parties without abatement or modification. The gold bill has been denounced and its repeal demanded. The menace of 16 to 1, therefore, still hangs over us with all its dire consequence to credit and confidence; to business and industry. The enemies of sound currency are rallying their scattered forces. The people must once more unite and overcome the advocates of repudiation and must not relax their energy until the battle for public honor and honest money shall again triumph.

A congress which will sustain and if need be strengthen the present law can prevent a financial catastrophe which ever y lover of the republic is interested to avert.

Not satisfied with assaulting the carrency and credit of the government, our political adversaries condemn the tariff law enacted at the extra session of congress in 1897, known as the Dingley act, passed in obedience to the will of the people expressed at the election in the preceding November, a law which at once stimulated our industries, opened the idle factories and mines and gave to the laborer and to the farmer fair returns for their toil and investment. Shall we go back to a tariff which brings deficiency in our revenues and destruction to our industrial enterprises?

Faithful to its pledges in these internal affairs, how has the government discharged its international duties? Our platform of 1896 declared "the Hawaijan islands should be controlled by the United States and no foreign power should be per mitted to interfere with them." This purpos has been fully accomplished by annexation, and delegates from those beautiful islands par ticipated in the convention for which youspeak today. In the great conference of nations at The Hague, we reaffirmed before the world the Monroe doctrine and our adherence to it and our determination not to participate in the complications of Europe. We have happily ended the European alliance in Samoa, securing to ourselves one of the most valuable door in China gives us fair and equal competition in the vast trade of the Orient. Some things have happened which were not promised, nor even foreseen, and our purpose in relation to them must not be left in doubt. A just war has been waged for humanity and with it have come new problems and responsi

Spain has been ejected from the western hemisphere and our flag floats over her for mer territory. Cuba has been liberated and our guarantees to her people will be sacredis executed. A beneficent government has been provided for Porto Rico. The Philippines are ours and American authority must be supreme throughout the archipelago. There will be amnesty broad and liberal, but no abatement of our rights, no abandonment of our duty. There must be no scuttle policy We will fulfill in the Philippines the obliga tions imposed by the triumphs of our arms and by the treaty of peace; by international law, by the nation's sense of honor and, more than all, by the rights, interests and condition of the Philippine people themselves. No outside interference blocks the way to peace and a stable government. The obstructionists are here, not elsewhere. They may postpone, but they cannot defeat the realization of the high purpose of this nation to restore order to the islands and to establish a just and generous government, in which the inhabitants shall have the targest participation for which they are capable. The organized forces, which have been misled into rebeliion, have been dispersed by our faithful soldiers and sailors and the people of the island, delivered from an archy, pillage and oppression, recognize American sovereignty as the symbol and pleage of peace, justice, law, religious freedom, education, the security of life and property and the we fare and prosperity of their several com munities.

We reasert the early principle of the Republican party, sustained by unbroken judicial precedents, that the representatives of the people, in congress assembled, have full legis lative power over territory belonging to the United States, subject to the fundamental safeguards of liberty, justice and personal rights, and are vested with ample authority to act "for the highest interests of our nation and the people entrusted to its care." doctrine, first proclaimed in the cause of freedom, will never be used as a weapon for oppression. I am glad to be assured by you that what we have done in the far east has the approval of the country. The sudden and terrible crisis in China calls for the gravest consideration, and you will not expect from me now any further expression than to say that my best efforts shall be given to the immediate purpose of protecting the lives of our citizens who are in peril with the ultimate object of the peace and weifare of China, the safeguarding of all our treaty rights and the maintenance of those principles of impartial intercourse to which the civilized world is pledged.

I can not conclude without congratulating my countrymen upon the strong, national sentiment which finds expression in every part of our common country and the increased respect with which the American name is greeted throughout the world. We have been moving in untried paths, but our steps have been guided by honor and duty. There will be no turning aside, no wavering, no retreat. No blow has been struck, except for liberty and humanity, and none will be. We will perform. without fear, every national and international obligation. The Republican party was dedicated to free dom 44 years ago. It has been the party of liberty and emancipation from that hour; not of profession but of performance. It broke the shackles of 4,000,000 slaves and made them free, and to the party of Lincoln has come another supreme opportunity which it has bravely met in the liberation of 10,000,000 of the human family from the yoke of imperialism. In its solution of great problems, in its performance of high duties, it has had the support of members of all parties in the past and confidently invokes their co-operation in

Permit me to express, Mr. Chairman, my most sincere appreciation of the complimentary terms in which you convey the official notice of my nomination and my thanks to the members of the committee and the great constituency which they represent for this additional evidence of their favor and support.

We would not ask for and work for it if we did not thoroughly believe it; neither would the brewers and liquor associations oppose it if it were not hurtful to their trade, although there are those who claim that there will be just as much, if not more, liquor used if the saloons are shut up as at present.

RESIDENT DEAD

William Baggott Passed Away Last Evening at His Home on Second Street.

tery In 1852 and Engaged In the Manufacture of Ware.

RETIRED FROM BUSINESS IN 1893

William Baggott died at his homeon Second street at 1:20 this morning. He is one of the best known citizens in East Liverpool, having been a resident here since the year 1848. The immediate cause of his death was Bright's disease. Two weeks ago his ailment first became serious. Before that he was out every day making trips around town and to the various potteries, taking as much interest in the work as when he was actively engaged in the business.

William Baggott was born in Staffordshire, England, 77 years ago. He was the son of James Baggott, who was prominent in England as a brickmaker. He was one of a family of 13 children, and he and his brother, Samuel Baggott, learned their father's trade, but saw greater possibilities in America than were then in England. They started for this country in 1848, landing in New York May 12. They spent a few days in that city and other eastern points, but their intention was to locate in East Liverpool. They started for this place, traveling over the Erie canal to Buffalo, that being the best route of travel available in those days. They made their way overland from that point arriving here late in the summer. East Liverpool was then in its infancy, and the brothers were among the first to make ware in this city. They were full of energy, and this coupled with a thorough understanding of the business, soon enabled them to build up a large trade. It was not long before they were shipping ware to wholesalers in various parts of the country. On November 1, 1852, they bought and took charge of the old John Goodwin pottery, which had been in operation seven or eight years at that time. Their purchase was not a large one, having at that time but two kilns and employing about 30 or 40 men. It was, however, among the largest of the potteries operating in the city at that time, the number then being about 13, all of which were engaged in the production of yellow or Rockingham ware. This pottery was located in an old frame building on the site where the Mountford pottery is now located. The plant was totally destroyed by fire in 1856, but was rebuilt at once, a number of improvements being made, and this, in addition to increased shipping facilities, increased their business materially. Additions were made to the plant from time to time, and quite an extensive business was being done at the time of the death of Samuel Baggott, which occurred Oct. 23, 1893. The pottery was sold soon after to John Mountford.

provements which were successfully given at Salineville in 1889.

The only remaining member of the family is a niece, who lives in England. He leaves a wife, Mrs. Mary Baggott, whose maiden name was Mary Behlafelt. They were married 25 years ago. No children were born to this union. Mr. Baggott was a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, being one of the first members of that congregation in this city.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. Weary, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church. Interment will be made in Riverview cemetery. The vestrymen of the church will act as pallbearers.

THEY ARE WILLING.

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY WILL ABIDE

By the Decision of Council in Regard to Running Cars Too Fast in East End.

Now that council has requested the East Liverpool and Wellsville Street Railway company to run its cars at less speed in the East End district, the company, it seems, is at somewhat of a disadvantage as to how to remedy the matter, although it is reported they are willing to abide by the request of the city council.

As matters are at present, it is with some dimculty that the motormen make their schedule time in that part of the city, owing to the distance between the East End switch and the loop, which, by the way, is the longest stretch between any two switches along the line. Another matter that is to be taken into consideration is the fact that passengers can only get on cars where stop signs are displayed, while in the past a car would stop at any point to accommodate a passenger. The motormen state that if the request of council is followed out a new switch will have to be constructed or the schedule time changed. For the the present it is apparent that both the company, motormen and passengers are wondering which is the pest course to pursue.

HUGHES WILL BE PRESIDENT

Special to the News Review.

Wheeling, July 13 .- (Special.) -The Brotherhood convention has decided that kilndrawers shall hereafter get $1 50 per day and the foreman $1 75.

The office of national statistician was abolished by the convention and the president will look after the work in the future. The office was held by James Miles, of East Liverpool.

The question of jiggermen on hotel ware was taken up and it was decided that they be given the same wages as before the uniform scale went into operation. This was one part of the trade that was overlooked at the Pittsnurg conference.

The report of the trustees was read and showed a decided increase during the past year both in finances and membership.

The balance of the morning session was spent in discussing the incoming executive board and how it shall be constituted. Heretofore the executive board has consisted of members from East Liverpool. Trenton and Wheeling now demand representation on the board and there is likely to be a fight before the matter is settled.

The convention expects to finish up the work tomorrow. The only candidates for the presidency seem to be E. A. Stevenson and Al Hughes, of East Liverpool, and the sentiment seems to be decidedly in favor of Hughes. It is almost conceded that Secretary Duffy will be reelected withcut opposition.

JUDGE HOLE'S DECISION.

Whan-Grim cases against the city of at Fast Liverpool and against ex-Mayor Bough has attracted much attention and comment. The almost universal verdict is that right has triumphed. The then city solicitor, Attorney Mc-Garry, made a long drawn out and bitter fight against the payment of the claims against the city by the councilmanic body, believing that such payment would be an injustice and an outrage against the taxpayers of this corporation. In battling along this line he quoted the case of Culp vs. the city of Steubenville and a similar case occurring in Columbus, and Judge Hole cited this fact in rendering his decision. Attorney McGarry has fun cause for rejoicing over Judge Hole's decision. And now for a second party in this battle. Attorney Mc-Garry vacated the city solicitorship on April 1, 1900, his successor, W. K. Gaston, assuming the office to which he had been elected by the franchises of the people. He at once took hold of the case of Whan and Grim vs. the city of East Liverpool, posted himself fully on the merits of the case, studied the legal side closely, believed in the justice of the defense and at once filed a demurrer before common pleas court, making a strong point of the fact that the prosecutors, Whan and Grim, were not incumbents at the time they claimed remuneration from the city; and further, that there were not facts stated in the petition sufficient to constitute cause tor action; and on these points City

Solicitor Gaston was fully sustained WERE DRUGGED in Judge Hole's decision.

OFFICIALS ARE INVESTIGATING

Lisbon, July 13.—(Special.)—On Wednesday afternoon two young men from Pittsburg alighted from a Fort Wayne train at East Palestine and inquired as to where they could get drink. Two men standing at the depot informed them that the town was dry, but that there was a good place out at the Klondike, and that they would take them out in case they wanted to go. They accepted the proposition and accompanied the men to the place, where they indulged in several glasses. Here their recollection ceased until several hours later, when one of them awoke to find himself lying in a fence corner on a country road with his pockets rifled of their contents. He found his companion lying near to him in an unconscious condition, also relieved of his belongings. About $60 was taken from the two, nothing being left but their return tickets to Pittsburg. Officials were at once notified and Deputy Howard Noragon went to East Palestine Thursday evening and a close investigation is being made.

A Lady Resident Complains That Scandalous Conduct Controls There.

Editor News Review-I am in a poabout. The conduct of drunken men and loafers about this old graveyard is simply abominable and scandalous. Mayor Davidson and his officers can easily demonstrate this statement to be a very plain truth, if they so desire. It is high time that a halt shall be called on such conduct. I know Mayor Davidson and I do not believe that he will sanction such proceedings. Arrests and heavy fines will have a beneficial effect upon the blackguards who have been indulging in such ruffianism.

Editor News Review-I am not a kicker; but I want my rights and the rights of my fellow citizens respected, and I intend that such shall be the case. Garbage wagons drive right through the Diamond with loads of filth fully exposed, and the hot sun beatinw down on the refuse, and the stench is simply horrible and apt to create disease. This morning, right in my presence and the presence of another business man, and a prominent councilman of the city, a portion of the load of garbage fell from the wagon, right in front of my place of business. The irresponsible driver

The Advance Will Be From $2.50 to $2.75 a Day and Was Agreed Upon Sometime Ago.

WILL TAKE EFFECT AUGUST 1

As soon as the old contracts are finished the frame building contractors will advance the wages of all carpenters from $2 50 to $2 75 a day.

This price the contractors agreed to pay to the men some time ago, but under conditions prevailing at that time no advance could be made. Nothing but harmony exists between the contractors and the carpenters, and a prominent contractor said last evening that the new price would be paid not later than the first of the month.

ly opposite by ancestry, birth, education and practice. McKinley comes from that old Scotch-Irish stock which early settled in Pennsylvania, that loved to fight the Indians and figured so bravely in every battle of the revolution to free the colonies from British rule. President McKinley's grandfather lies buried in an Ohio graveyard and his tombstone tells the heroic story of his duty as a Revolutionary soldier in 1776-83. President McKinley comes of a race and stock that did not furnish a single tory in the revolutionary struggle and that races' descendants have blazed away ever since in the marvelous development of Ohio and Pennsylvania's industrial plants, factories, workshops and on these two great states' farms.

FROM IMPERIALISM,

The President Said We Had Rescued the Filipinos.

OUR CHINESE POLICY OUTLINED.

Points In Speeches of Both the President and Lodge Considered by Some Present Notification to the World - Addresses Also by Hanna, Foraker and Others.

Canton, O., July 13.-Important features of the speech formally notifying President McKinley of his renomination by Senator Lodge and the response by President McKinley were the references to the Chinese situation. This caused a great deal of discussion during the conference following the formal speech-making, and the impression created was that these utterances were a notification to the world that the United States intends to preserve all its rights in China. The impressive portions of the president's speech were his references to the maintenance of the gold standard and tne financial public faith, the preservation of a protective tariff, the enlargement of our market, and especially the catchy phrase, "Prosperity at home and prestige abroad." His declaration that the United States had reclaimed "10,000.000 human beings from imperialism" was a decided hit, and there were many requests for him to repeat the sentence. This turn of the word used so much by the opposition was considered one of the adroit features of the speech.

The president seemed at his best. His appearance indicated splendid health, and his voice rang out in clarion tones, reaching the outskirts of the vast throng which sur rounded the house and extended over the lawn and across the street. Other speakers were called for.

Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana; Senator Han na, chairman of the national committe; Chas. Emory Smith, postmaster general; Colone Samuel Parker, of Hawaii, and Senator Lodge were heard-the last named speaking twice. These speakers, with the exception of Colone Parker, who was called out of compliment to the Pacific islands, took occasion to refer to the recent action of the Democratic national convention in Kansas City. It was the first public occasion in which Republican speakers had attempted to dissect and criticize the platform recently adopted by their opponents. Senator Fairbanks evidently intended to make the money question the dominant issue of the campaign, denying that with 16 to 1 in their platform the Democrats could make "imperialism" the leading issue. Senator Hanna abjured Republican voters to remember the importance of their campaign.

Postmaster General Smith warned his hearers that Democratic success would disarrange the business interests of the country.

In his second speech Senator Lodge resented the criticism of President McKinley by his opponents, and pointed out the difficulty Bryan would have in selecting a cabinet from the men prominent in the conventions at Kansas City and Sioux Falls.

The notification committee and party came from Cleveland on a special train, making the run in one hour and twenty-one minutes. They were met at the station and in carriages escorted to the home of President McKinley. The Tippecanoe club, of Cleveland, was given the place of honor, next to the band. The flag floated from many business houses and residences along the route of the procession. Other delegations from nearby cities and towns helped to swell the large

After luncheon had been served, the party leaders went with the president into the house. There were a number of informal conferences but the time was devoted almost wholly to giving the visitors an opportunity to become personally acquainted with the president. While there was a considerable discussion of politics and future politics, this was confined largely to the members of the national committee. Later, the last of the Cleveland party, including Sanator Hanna, Mr. Bliss, Mr. Payne and others left the McKinley residence to take the train for home. President McKinley accompanied them to their carriages and bade them

Mr. Lodge said:

MR. PRESIDENT-This committee, representing every state in the nation, and the organized territories of the United States, was duly appointed to announce to you, formally, your nomination by the Republican national convention, which met in Philadelphia on June 19 last, as the candidate of the Republican party for president of the United States for the term beginning March 4, 1901. To be selected by the Republican party as their candidate for this great office is always one of the highest honors which can be given to any man. This nomination, however, comes to you, sir. under circumstances which give it a higher significance and make it an even deeper expression of honor and trust than usual. You were nominated unanimously at Philadelphia. You received the unforced vote of every delegate, from every state and every territory.

The harmony of sentiment which appears on the face of the record was but the reflection of the deeper harmony which existed in the hearts and minds of the delegates. Without factions, without dissent, with profound satissaction and eager enthusiasm, you were nominated for the presidency by the united voice of the representatives of our great party, in which there is neither sign of division nor shadow of turning. Such unanimity, always remarkable, is here the more impressive because it accompanies a second nomination to the great office which you have held for four years. It is not the facile triumph of hope over experience, but the sober approval of conduct and character tested in many trials and tried by heavy and extraordinary responsibilities. With the exception of period in which Washington organized the nation and built the state, and of those other awful years when Lincoln led his people through the agony of civil war and saved from destruction the work of Washington, there has never been a presidential term in our history so crowded with great events, so filled with new and momentous questions as that which is now drawing to its end. True to the declarations which were made at St. Louis in 1806, you, sir, united with the Republicans in congress in the revision of the tariff and the re-establishment of the protective policy.

You maintained our credit and upheld the gold standard, leading the party by your advice to the passage of the great measure which is today the bulwark of both. You lead again in the poncy which has made Hawaii a possession of the United States. On all these questions you fulfilled the hopes and justified the confidence of the people, who four years ago put trust in our promise. But on all these questions, also, you had as guides, not only your own principles, the well considered results of years of training and reflection, but also, the plain declarations of the national convention which nominated you in 1896. Far different was it when the Cuban question, which we had also promised to settle, brought first, war, and then peace, with Spain. Congress declared war, but you, as commander-inchief, had to carry it on. You did so, and history records unbroken victory from the first shot of the Nashville to the day when the pro tocol was signed. The peace, you had to make alone. Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines; you had to assume the responsibility of taking them all from Spain. Alone, and weighted with the terrible resonsibility of the unchecked war powers of the constitution, you were obliged to govern these islands and to repress rebellion and disorder in the Philippines. No party creed defined the course you were to follow. Courage, foresight, comprehension of American interests, both now and in the uncharted future, faith in the American people and in their fitness for great tasks, were then your only guides and counsellors.

Thus, you framed and put in operation this great new policy which has made us at once master of the Antilles and a great eastern power, holding firmly our possessions on both sides of the Pacific.

In the new and strange ever exists fear, and the courage and prescence which accept them, always arouse criticism and attack. Yet a great departure and a new policy were never more quickly justified than those undertaken by you. On the possession of the Philippines rests the admirable diplomacy which warned all nations that American trade was not to be shut from China. It is to Manila that we owe the ability to send troops and ships in this time of stress to the defense of our ministers, fur missionaries, our consuls and our merthants in China, instead of being compelled to leave our citizens to the casual protection of other powers, as would have been unavoidable had we flung the Philippines away and with drawn from the Orient.

Rest assured, sir, that the vigorous measures which you have thus been enabled to take, and that all further measures in the same direction which you may take, for the protection of American lives and property will receive the hearty support of the people of the United States, who are now, as always, determined that the American citizen shall be protected at any cost in all his rights, everywhere, and at all times. It is to Manila again, to our fleet in the bay, and our army on the land that we shall owe the power, when these scenes of blood in China are closed, to exact reparation, to enforce stern justice, and to insist, in the final settlement, upon an open door to all that vast market for our fast growing commerce.

Events, moving with terrible rapidity, have been swift witnesses to the wisdom of your action in the east. The Philadelphia convention has adopted your policy both in the Antilles and the Philippines, and has made it their own and that of the Republican party.

Your election, sir, next November assures to us the continuance of that policy abroad and in our new possessions. To entrust these difficult and vital questions to other hands, at once incompetent and hostile, would be a disaster to us, and a still more unrelieved disaster to our posterity. Your election means not only protection to our industries, but the maintenance of a sound currency and of the gold standard, the very cornerstones of our economic and financial welfare.

Should these be shaken as they would be by the success of our opponents, the whole fabric of our business confidence and prosperity would fall into ruin. Your defeat would be the signal for the advance of free trade, for the anarchy of a debased and unstable currency, for business panic, depression and hard times, and for the wreck of our foreign policy. Your election and the triumph of the Republican party-which we believe to be as sure as the coming of the day-will make certain the steady protection of our industries, sound money and a vigorous and intelligent foreign policy. They will continue those conditions of good government and wise legislation, so essential to the prosperity and well being which have blessed our country in such abunance during the past four years.

Thus announcing to you, sir, your nomination as the Republican candidate for the presidency, we have the honor also to submit to you the declaration of principles made by the national convention, which, we trust, will receive your approval. We can assure you of the faithful and earnest support of the Republican party in every state, and we beg you to believe that we discharge here today, with feelings of the deepest personal gratification, this honor able duty imposed upon us by the convention.

President McKinley, in reply, said: Senator Lodge and Gentlemen of the Notification Committee: The message which you bring to me is one of signal honor. It is also a summons to duty. A single nomination for the office of president by a great party which in 32 years out of 40 has been triumphant at national elections, is a distinction which I gratefully cherish. To receive unanimous renomination by the same party is an expression of regard and a pledge of continued confidence for which it is difficult to make adequate acknowledgment. If anything exceeds the honors of the office of President of the United States, it is the responsibility which attaches to it. Having been invested with both, I do not underappraise either. Any one who has borne the anxieties and burdens of the presidential office, especially in times of national trouble, can not contemplate assuming it a second time without profoundly realizing the severe exactions and the solemn obligations which it imposes, and this feeling is accentuated by the momentous problems which now press for settlement. If my countrymen shall confirm the action of the convention at our national election in November, 1 shan, craving drvine guidance, undertake the exalted trust, to administer it for the interest and honor of the country and the well being of the new peoples who have become the objects of our care. The declaration of principles adopted by the convention has my hearty approval. At some future date I will consider its subjects in detail and will by letter communicate to your chairman a more formal acceptance of the nomination. On a like occasion, four years ago, I said:

"The party that supplied by legislation the vast revenues for the conduct of our greatest war, that promptly restored the credit of our country at its close; that from its abundant revenues paid off a large share of the debt incurred by this war, and that resumed specie payments and placed our paper currency upon a sound and enduring basis, can be safely trusted to preserve both our credit and cur rency with honor, stability and inviolability The American people hold the financial honor of our government as sacred as our flag, and can be relied upon to guard it with the same sleepless vigilance. They hold its preservation above party fealty and have often demonstrated that party ties avail nothing when the spotless credit of our country is threatened.

"The dollar paid to the farmer, the wage earner and the pensioner must continue for ever equal in purchasing and debt-paying power to the dollar paid to any government creditor.

"Our industrial supremacy, our productive capacity, our business and commercial prosperity, our labor and its rewards, our national credit and currency, our proud financial honor and our splendid free citizenship, the birthright of every American, are all involved in the pending campaign, and thus every home in the land is directly and intimately interested with their proper settlement.

"Our domestic trade must be won back and our idle working people employed in gainful occupations at American wages. Our home market must be restored to its proud rank of first in the world, and our foreign trade, so precipitately cut off by adverse national legislation, reopened on fair and equitable terms for our surplus agricultural and manufacturing products.

Public confidence must be resumed and the skill, energy and the capital of our country find ample employment at home. The government of the United States must raise money enough to meet both its current expenses and increasing needs. Its revenues should be so raised as to protect the material interests of our people, with the lightest possible drain upon their resources, and maintaining that high standard of civilization which has distinguished our country for more than a century of its existence.

"The national credit, which has thus far for tunately resisted every assault upon it, must and will be upheld and strengtherfed. If sufficient revenues are provided for the support of the government there will be no necessity for borrowing money and increasing the public

Three and one-haif; years of legislation and administration have been concluded since these words were spoken. Have those to whom was confided the direction of the government kept their pledges? The record is made up. The people are not unfamiliar with what has been accomplished. The gold standard has been re affirmed and strengthened. The endless chain has been broken and the drain upon our gold reserve no longer frets us. The credit of the country has been advanced to the highest place among all nations. We are refunding our bonded debt, bearing 3 and 4 and 5 per cent, at 2 per cent, a lower rate than that of any other country, and already more than $300,000,000 have been so funded, with a gain to the government of many millions of dollars Instead of the 16 to 1, for which our opponents contended four years ago, legislation has been enacted which, waile utilizing all forms of our money, secures one fixed value for every dollar, and that the best known to the civilized

A tariff which protects American labor and industry and provides ample revenues has been written in public law. We have lower interests and higher wages; more money and fewer mortgages. The world's markets have been opened to American products, which go now where they have never gone before We have passed from a bond-issuing to a bond paying nation; from a nation of borrowers to a nation of lenders; from a deficiency in revenue to a surplus; from fear to confidence; from enforced idleness to profitable employment. The public faith has been upheld; public order has been main-We have prosperity at home and tained. prestige abroad.

Unfortunately the threat of 1896 has just been renewed by the allied parties without abatement or modification. The gold bill has been denounced and its repeal demanded. The menace of 16 to 1, therefore, still hangs over us with all its dire consequence to credit and confidence; to business and industry. The enemies of sound currency are rallying their scattered forces. The people must once more unite and overcome the advocates of repudiation and must not relax their energy until the battle for public honor and honest money shall again triumph.

A congress which will sustain and if need be strengthen the present law can prevent a financial catastrophe which ever y lover of the republic is interested to avert. Not satisfied with assaulting the carrency and credit of the government, our political adversaries condemn the tariff law enacted at the extra session of congress in 1897, known as the Dingley act, passed in obedience to the will of the people expressed at the election in the preceding November, a law which at once stimulated our industries, opened the idle factories and mines and gave to the laborer and to the farmer fair returns for their toil and investment. Shall we go back to a tariff which brings deficiency in our revenues and destruction to our industrial enterprises?

Faithful to its pledges in these internal affairs, how has the government discharged its international duties? Our platform of 1896 declared "the Hawaiian islands should be controlled by the United States and no foreign power should be per mitted to interfere with them." This purpose has been fully accomplished by annexation, and delegates from those beautiful islands participated in the convention for which youspeak today. In the great conference of naworld the Monroe doctrine and our adherence to it and our determination not to participate in the complications of Europe. We have happily ended the European alliance in Samoa, securing to ourselves one of the most valuable harbors in the Pacific ocean while the open door in China gives us fair and equal competi tion in the vast trade of the Orient. Some things have happened which were not prom ised, nor even foreseen, and our purpose in relation to them must not be left in doubt. A just war has been waged for humanity and with it have come new problems and responsi-

There must be no scuttle policy We will fulfill in the Philippines the obliga tions imposed by the triumphs of our arms and by the treaty of peace; by international law, by the nation's sense of honor and, more than all, by the rights, interests and condition of the Philippine people themselves. No outside interference blocks the way to peace and a stable government. The obstructionists are here, not elsewhere. They may postpone, but they cannot defeat the realization of the high purpose of this nation to restore order to the islands and to establish a just and generous government, in which the inhabitants shall have the largest participation for which they are capable. The organized forces, which have been misled into rebeliion, have been dis persed by our faithful soldiers and sailors and the people of the island, delivered from an archy, pillage and oppression, recognize American sovereignty as the symbol and pleage of peace, justice, law, religious freedom, educa tion, the security of life and property and the we fare and prosperity of their several com

We reasert the early principle of the Re publican party, sustained by unbroken judi cial precedents, that the representatives of the people, in congress assembled, have full legis lative power over territory belonging to the United States, subject to the fundamenta safeguards of liberty, justice and personal rights, and are vested with ample authority to act "for the highest interests of our nation and the people entrusted to its care." doctrine, first proclaimed in the cause of freedom, will never be used as a weapon for oppression. I am glad to be assured by you that what we have done in the far east has the approval of the country. The sudden and terrible crisis in China calls for the gravest consideration, and you will not expect from me now any further expression than to say that my best efforts shall be given to the immediate purpose of protecting the lives of our citizens who are in peril with the ultimate object of the peace and weifare of China, the safeguarding of all our treaty rights and the maintenance of those principles of impartial intercourse to which the civilized world is pledged.

I can not conclude without congratulating my countrymen upon the strong, national sentiment which finds expression in every part of our common country and the increased respect with which the American name is greeted throughout the world. We have been moving in untried paths, but our steps have been guided by honor and duty. There will be no turning aside, no wavering, no retreat. No blow has been struck, except for liberty and humanity, and none will be. We will perform. without fear, every national and international

The Republican party was dedicated to free dom 44 years ago. It has been the party of liberty and emancipation from that hour; not of profession but of performance. It broke the shackles of 4,000,000 slaves and made them free, and to the party of Lincoln has come another supreme opportunity which it has bravely met in the liberation of 10,000,000 of the human family from the yoke of imperialism. In its solution of great problems, in its performance of high duties, it has had the support of members of all parties in the past and confidently invokes their co-operation in the future.

Permit me to express, Mr. Chairman, my most sincere appreciation of the compliment ary terms in which you convey the official no tice of my nomination and my thanks to the members of the committee and the great constituency which they represent for this additional evidence of their favor and support.
